FLOKK invites you to come and play with colour, shapes and materials for this years Stockholm Design Week with sculptural, ever-changing stacking blocks.

These past two years we have seen so many digital launches and experiences through a screen. Enjoy a screen free environment, tactility and create your very own combinations of colours, materials and finish.

In addition to having a go with colour, materials and finish the stacking blocks allows you to assemble a variety of new structures and shapes.

Geometric shapes take the place of a digital configurator and let you explore the material library behind the new HÅG Tion in a range of considered materials and textiles.

In a separate room there'll be the opportunity to dive deeper and discover more ideas, workshops, seminars and products hosted by FLOKK. This showcase has been designed with a circular ethos where all objects have a purpose and lifetime beyond the duration of The Design Week.

HÅG Tion is made up of wood, a curated colour palette, textiles and recycled plastic, aluminium and steel. Tion is also connected to nature – One of the most sustainable chair in the world. Made with 75% recycled & renewable materials, it has the lowest carbon footprint of any of our task chairs, and its lightweight yet sturdy design enables it to cope with the demands of daily use.
